Health Coaching Program

In the Nation

Masters of Arts in Integrative Health & Wellbeing Coaching

For those seeking to become leaders in the health coaching discipline, the M.A. program is a perfect fit. Students can expect to gain important skills in diversity, equity, inclusion, trauma-informed mental health, and leadership development. All courses are offered in a blended format, a combination of online and in-person intensives, and students can complete the program in 2 years. We also have options for those who are already NBC-HWC or ICF certified and are seeking to advance their skills and careers.

Innovation and leadership

Our masters degree program is the only one in the nation that focuses on leadership and management competencies as part of health coaching education.

Our graduates accumulate more than 100 hours of coaching experience through a diversity, equity, and inclusion lens, and are prepared to coach not only one-on-one but within groups.

Additionally, our integrative and whole-person approach to coaching - along with training in trauma-informed care - makes our program stand above the rest.

Why Now?

In 2023, the NBHWC and Veterans Administration applied for CPT I codes for health coaching to be reimbursed by insurance companies. If approved by the American Medical Association, it is expected that reimbursement will be available for one-to-one and group coaching. We expect this will increase job opportunities for health coaches in healthcare and are preparing our students to work in these interdisciplinary healthcare teams.

On-site requirement

Students are required to participate in person on campus once a semester (fall and spring) during the first year only.

Internship and group coaching sites

The Minnesota based internships are Telehealth/Zoom so that the students can live anywhere.

One on one internship and group coaching sites include:

- TRIA
- Hennepin County
- VA Medical Center
- Virgin Pulse
- Fairview Health Services
- Pathways
- American Academy of Neurology
